No. 2:17-cv-01655-TSZ

AMENDED COMPLAINT FOR DAMAGES

I. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Defendant Seattle Police officers arrested Ryan Grant on November 28, 2014, during a public protest in Downtown Seattle that arose in response to the announcement of the grand jury verdict in the case of Michael Brown in Ferguson, Missouri, one of several high-profile police shootings that drew nationwide attention to the disproportionately high number of African-Americans killed by law enforcement. At the time of his arrest, Mr. Grant was protesting peacefully amid a group of other protesters whose path SPD bicycle officers blocked at the corner of Pine Street and Boren Avenue, under the SPD directive that the protest not be allowed to proceed into the public forum of Seattle's downtown commercial district. As Mr. Grant stood pinned between the crowd of protesters and the impromptu bicycle barricade—holding a sign that read “Am I next?”—a phalanx of officers charged the crowd repeatedly with their bikes, striking the people in front violently, including Mr. Grant. With protesters pressing

1 him from behind, Mr. Grant held up his hands in a compliant posture, then outstretched them to 2 his sides in an effort to push the crowd back from the police advances. He did not push or kick 3 any of the officers; yet the officers jabbed Mr. Grant and other protesters with riot batons. The 4 officers also detonated loud “blast balls” that dispersed pepper spray and escalated tensions. A 5 bystander video captured the officers’ aggressive tactics and the defensive response of Mr.
6 Grant.

7           1.2     On the order of Defendant Sgt. James Dymment, Defendants Larry Longley and 8 Alan Richards grabbed Mr. Grant, one of the few African Americans in the predominantly white 9 crowd, pulled him through the police line, threw him to the ground, and handcuffed him.
10 Defendants Brian Koshak, Bernard Mahoney, and Steven Stewart assisted in arresting Mr. Grant 11 for felony assault of a police officer, resisting arrest, and obstruction. Mr. Grant was booked 12 and spent the night in jail. To justify the arrest, the officers concocted the story that Mr. Grant 13 “pushed” SPD officers “several times,” including Defendants Longley and Richards. The 14 officers supported their story with false and misleading written statements submitted to their 15 superior officers, and ultimately to the prosecutor, recommending that Mr. Grant be prosecuted.
16 The prosecutor relied on these reports and moved forward with the prosecution of Mr. Grant.

17           1.3     Defendants arrested Mr. Grant in retaliation for exercising his First Amendment 18 rights, and without probable cause. The officers were acting under the directive to stop the Mr.
19 Grant’s protected First Amendment activity as the otherwise peaceful protest moved to enter 20 downtown and commingle with holiday shoppers. Worse yet, the officers singled out Mr. Grant 21 as an African-American, indeed as he displayed his “Am I next?” sign that is emblematic of the 22 Black Lives Matter movement decrying police brutality. In fact, Officer Longley, who had a 23 history of racism and excessive force, used his riot baton to deliberately knock this sign out of 24 Mr. Grant’s hands in the moments before the arrest.

25           1.4     Over the course of the next fourteen months as the criminal case proceeded to 26 trial, the SPD withheld its Office of Professional Accountability (OPA) investigative files that 27 contained Officer Longley’s history of bias, despite a standing motion for such criminal

1 discovery, until the court compelled production of the records on the eve of trial. The SPD 2 similarly withheld the obviously exculpatory bystander video, again despite the discovery motion 3 and the constitutional duty to provide such evidence favorable to the defense. This evidence, 4 too, was not produced until the court's order. After viewing the video and hearing officer 5 testimony replete with contradictions, a jury acquitted Mr. Grant.

6 1.5 Mr. Grant brings this complaint for damages for violations of his First and Fourth 7 Amendment rights, as well as a state law claim for outrage, because of Defendants' targeting him 8 for retaliation and malicious prosecution.

IV. FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

4.1 On November 28, 2014, Plaintiff Ryan Grant participated in a protest in Seattle against the grand jury verdict in the Michael Brown police shooting case in Ferguson, Missouri.

4.2 The protest was against police brutality committed against African American communities, organized as part of the larger Black Lives Matter movement.

4.3 In preparing for the protest, the Seattle Police Department (SPD) explicitly acknowledged the reaction to the announcement of the grand jury verdict in Ferguson as the purpose of the protest and developed a strategic plan to contain it.

4.4 Mr. Grant marched with a group of protesters that met at Seattle University, proceeded from there along Broadway Avenue, and turned left down Pike Street. It was a peaceful protest, without violence or property destruction. As they went, there were SPD officers present along that route, on bikes and otherwise. Until Mr. Grant's group of protesters reached the corner of Pike Street and Boren Avenue, SPD officers allowed the protest to continue without interference.

4.5 Mr. Grant is unmistakably an African-American man. On the day of the protest, he was wearing a red and black ski jacket. He was not wearing any kind of head covering or

1 mask, and made no other attempts to conceal his appearance or identity. Though it was a rainy 2 day, Mr. Grant carried no umbrella as some of the other protesters did.

3 4.6 For the duration of his participation in the protest, until shortly before his arrest, 4 Mr. Grant held up a sign that stated: "Am I next?" He also chanted related political statements.
5 Aside from the sign, Mr. Grant carried nothing in his hands.

6 4.7 As Mr. Grant and the other protesters reached the corner of Pike Street and Boren 7 Avenue, Defendants and other SPD police officers formed a blockade. Coordinated in part by 8 Defendant Sgt. James Dymment, SPD bike officers picked up their bikes perpendicular to their 9 bodies and, standing roughly shoulder to shoulder, created what they called a "mobile fence 10 line." The SPD officers did this under a directive to block the protesters' movement into the 11 public areas around Westlake Center in downtown Seattle where a holiday tree lighting 12 ceremony was set to begin. At the time the officers formed their "mobile fence line" across Pike, 13 the protesters were peaceful as they had been since the beginning of the march.

14 4.8 Using this "mobile fence line" technique, the officers halted the progress of the 15 march, blocking both the street and sidewalk, and then began to back the group into a corner so 16 that they were surrounded by physical barriers or police officers. The officers' stated intent was 17 to prevent the protesters from moving along their route and crossing into downtown.

18 4.9 As the group of 100-150 protesters met the phalanx of officers, some protesters 19 moved toward the corner of Pine Street and Boren Avenue. Mr. Grant found himself near the 20 front of this group of protesters.

21 4.10 At Pine and Boren, SPD officers formed another "mobile fence line" with their 22 bikes, with a second group of officers behind and amid them referred to as "linebackers." 23 Defendant Dymment was a supervisor, and Defendants Koshak, Mahoney, Longley, Richards, and 24 Stewart were among the "linebackers" behind the row of bike officers.

25 4.11 In the first row of protesters, Mr. Grant, still holding his "Am I next?" sign, was 26 caught between the line of officers and the group of protesters who continued to amass behind 27 him.

1           4.12 From this position, Mr. Grant yelled loudly in an attempt to convince other 2 protesters to not push into the police officers.

3           4.13 As he did this, the line of bike officers picked up their bikes, again held 4 perpendicular to their bodies, and made repeated advances into Mr. Grant and the other 5 protesters alongside him. Mr. Grant held his hands in the air in a non-threatening manner as the 6 police continued to push the fence line into him and the other protesters near the front.

7           4.14 No officer instructed Mr. Grant or others to disburse, with a warning that they 8 would be arrested if they did not. They shouted only "Move back!"

9           4.15 After several forceful pushes into the group of protesters, SPD officers under 10 Defendant Dymont's supervision deployed "blast balls," which are explosive devices that contain 11 an oleoresin capsicum (OC) irritant, also known as pepper spray. The officers deployed two of 12 these blast balls near Mr. Grant, which caused disorder as the concussive sound startled the 13 protesters and the OC irritant made it difficult to see. Other protesters near Mr. Grant held up 14 umbrellas as the OC cloud wafted up and the police officers moved toward them. A few officers 15 began pulling umbrellas from the protesters' hands. They did this, despite testimony later at trial 16 that it was reasonable that protesters might have umbrellas because it was a rainy day.

17           4.16 After a few seconds, the SPD officers resumed their mobile fence line, again 18 pushing back into the crowd, striking Mr. Grant and the other protesters with their bicycles as 19 before, causing some of them to fall down.

20           4.17 The officers performed this crowd control technique still under the directive to 21 block the protesters from entering downtown.

22           4.18 Defendant Richards was among the police officers advancing the fence line into 23 the protesters. As he did, he became involved in an altercation with protesters holding 24 umbrellas. Mr. Grant was not one of these protesters.

25           4.19 Defendant Longley also engaged in physical altercations with protesters and 26 attempted to pull or knock umbrellas out of protesters' hands. He stood near Defendant Richards 27

1 as he did this. Despite the obvious rainy weather, Defendant Longley used his riot baton to 2 knock these umbrellas away.

3 4.20 During roughly the same time frame, Defendant Longley lunged at Mr. Grant 4 with his riot baton, punctured the “Am I next?” sign, and knocked it to the ground. Mr. Grant 5 put his hands up in the air, in a gesture used widely during Black Lives Matter protests to signify 6 “Hands Up, Don’t Shoot.”

7 4.21 Pinned between the line of bicycle officers and the pressure of the crowd behind 8 him, Mr. Grant extended his hands out to the side and backwards in an effort to hold back the 9 protesters and create some space between himself and the officers who continued to push 10 forward with their bicycles, as was captured by a bystander video.

11 4.22 In the midst of the officers’ assault on the protesters, Defendant Sgt. Dymant 12 ordered Defendants Longley and Richards to grab Mr. Grant. In his police report, Officer 13 Richards wrote: “I was still assisting in maintain the line when Sgt. Dymant instructed me to 14 take custody of a B/M [black male],” which he later identified as Mr. Grant.

15 4.23 At no time during the blockade at Pine and Boren (or before then) did Mr. Grant 16 push, shove, kick, or otherwise go past the bike line or make affirmative contact with the 17 officers, including Defendants Richards or Longley. The only contact between Mr. Grant and 18 the officers was when they forcefully pushed their bicycles into the crowd.

19 4.24 Mr. Grant was not involved in any altercations, did not have an umbrella, and did 20 not attempt to prevent any police officers from contacting or otherwise dealing with any 21 protesters. Mr. Grant, dressed in his red and black ski jacket and without hat or mask, clearly did 22 not resemble any blackclad “anarchist” that SPD vilified as potential violent protesters.

23 4.25 There were very few other African-American protesters in the crowd, and Mr.
24 Grant was the only African-American protester in the immediate vicinity of the individual 25 Defendants at the time Sgt. Dymant ordered the arrest of Mr. Grant.

26 4.26 Defendants Richards and Longley pulled Mr. Grant out of the group of protesters 27 and physically dragged him across the police line. Mr. Grant did not resist arrest, but said “Am I

1 being arrested?” Defendants Richards and Longley threw him to the ground with unnecessary 2 and excessive force. Defendants Koshak, Mahoney, and Stevens assisted in the arrest and 3 handcuffing of Mr. Grant. After one of the officers yelled at him to “stop resisting!” Mr. Grant 4 went “as limp as possible,” as he later testified.

5 4.27 After Mr. Grant was arrested, the officers turned him over to transport officers to 6 be taken into custody at a Seattle police station. After being booked, Mr. Grant was transported 7 to the King County Jail where he spent the night.

8 4.28 Among the protesters near Mr. Grant, the officers claimed some were kicking and 9 pushing officers, or holding the allegedly weaponized umbrellas; and some were allegedly 10 dressed in black clothing associated with “anarchists.” Although these other protesters were later 11 described to be far more menacing than any conduct attributed to Mr. Grant, Defendants arrested 12 the tall, visibly African American (Grant) who was caught between the larger group of protesters 13 and the SPD mobile fence line, as he outstretched his hands outstretched in a non-aggressive 14 posture.

15 4.29 The individual Defendants wrote statements, police reports, and use of force 16 reports regarding the arrest of Mr. Grant.

17 4.30 Officer Longley made the false claim: “At one point I noticed a black male in his 18 early 20’s wearing a black and red coat got in front of me and began yelling obscenities directly 19 at me and the bike officer next me,” and that he was “trying to insight [sic] the crowd.” Officer 20 Longley also stated falsely: “[T]he black male in the black and red jacket began pushing at me 21 and the bike officers. He attempted to push through our line by pushing me.” In his report, 22 Officer Longley admitted that he used his baton against the protesters, but omitted the material 23 facts that Mr. Grant was holding the “Am I next?” sign and that he knocked it from his hands. In 24 his report, Officer Longley went on to mention deployment of the blast balls and followed his 25 false and misleading narrative with the statement: “At that point a supervisor in the back 26 (Dyment) yell to arrest the black male in the red and black jacket,” whom he later identified as 27 Mr. Grant.

1           4.31   Officer Richards made the false claim: “As I as struggling over the umbrella [of a 2 bystander] a black male wearing a red and black jacket [referring to Grant] hit my arms and 3 shoved me. . . . The male pushed me several times. I also observed him shoving officers to the 4 left and right of me. . . . A/Grant did not comply with orders and actively shoved me and fellow 5 SPD officers.” Officer Richards followed this false description with the statement: “Sgt.
6 Dymment verbally advised me that A/Grant needed to be arrested to be placed under arrest.”

7           4.32   Defendant Officer Brian Koshak made the following false statement in support of 8 the arrest: Mr. Grant “pushed Officer Longley and other officers . . . .” He also stated falsely 9 that Mr. Grant “continued to pull away and resist,” after the officers attempted to arrest him.
10 Officer Koshak omitted the material fact that Mr. Grant’s arms were outstretched as he tried to 11 create space between the officers and protests. He similarly omitted that Mr. Grant had nothing 12 in his hands that could be used as any weapon, and that Officer Longley used his baton to knock 13 Mr. Grant’s “Am I next?” sign away.

14           4.33   Sgt. Dymment did not write any reports regarding Mr. Grant’s arrest. Later at Mr.
15 Grant’s criminal trial, Sgt. Dymment could not corroborate the observations of Officers Longley 16 and Richards and testified: “I just recall advising a couple officers to make arrests there . . . but I 17 don’t specifically recall Mr. Grant’s arrest.”

18           4.34   Officer Stewart omitted the material fact that Mr. Grant was not pushing at the 19 officers or attempting to breach the bike line. Officer Richards also made the false statement that 20 Mr. Grant “continued to his attempt to break free from us,” after the officers told him to stop 21 resisting.

22           4.35   A few days after the November 28, 2014 protest and arrest of Mr. Grant, and after 23 the officers had completed their reports, an SPD officer found on the internet a video of the 24 protest and Mr. Grant’s arrest and circulated the link among the participating officers, including 25 one or more of the Defendants. The video did not corroborate any of the material allegations of 26 criminal conduct made by Defendants. Though there were gaps in the video, the existing 27

1 segments showed Mr. Grant pinned between the bike line and the throng of protesters behind 2 him, with his arms outstretched trying to push the protesters back.

3 4.36 Defendants lacked probable cause to arrest Mr. Grant. They also arrested Mr.
4 Grant out of retaliatory animus for exercising his First Amendment rights. Worse yet, they 5 explicitly focused on Mr. Grant's race as a "black male" and singled him out for arrest from the 6 fellow protesters who, even by the officers' account, were purportedly engaged in much more 7 threatening conduct than anything attributed to Mr. Grant.

8 4.37 The Seattle City Attorney's Office prosecuted Mr. Grant on charges of 9 misdemeanor assault, obstruction and resisting arrest, relying on the false and misleading 10 accounts of the individual Defendants.

11 4.38 During pre-trial discovery, the SPD withheld some evidence from both the City 12 Attorney's Office and Mr. Grant's attorney for almost eight months. This evidence included the 13 video of the events leading up to Mr. Grant's arrest, and internal reports from SPD's Office of 14 Professional Accountability (OPA) that contained complaints against the Defendants for racial 15 bias and/or excessive force, some of which had resulted in thorough investigations into officer 16 misconduct, civil suits, and official admonishments.

17 4.39 The SPD only produced that evidence the day before Mr. Grant's trial, despite the 18 standing motion for criminal discovery and Brady material urged by Mr. Grant's criminal 19 defense attorney. The exculpatory evidence was provided only by court order.

20 4.40 The case proceeded to trial, on February 3, 2016, after Mr. Grant had endured for 21 approximately fourteen months the stress and fear of an unjust conviction that potentially carried 22 as many as 364 days in jail, the consequent loss of his job, and stigma associated with being 23 suspected of a crime.

24 4.41 Defendants Koshak, Longley, Stewart, and Dymont testified. Some of the 25 testimony they gave contradicted their written accounts of the arrest. The testifying officers also 26 could not identify any specific assaultive acts by Mr. Grant. Sgt. Dymont could not articulate 27 why he ordered that Mr. Grant be arrested.

1           6.3     Costs, including reasonable attorneys' fees, under 42 U.S.C. § 1988 and to the 2 extent otherwise permitted by law;

3           6.4     Such other relief as may be just and equitable.
